

CAN POST POLICE IN A SUSPECTED HOUSE, SAYS COURT

Waldo Upheld in Suit to Withdraw Uniformed Man
From Regan's.

NEED NOT PROVE CRIME.
Reasonable Ground to Believe Gambling Exists Is Sufficient.

Supreme Court Justice McCall to-day decided that Police Commissioner Waldo has an absolute right to station uniformed policemen in any building or place of business where the Commissioner has reasonable grounds to believe that gambling is going on or will continue if the police is removed.

The opinion is squarely opposite to the "personal liberty" decision of Mayor Gaynor, when a Justice. It was the opinion of Justice Gaynor, which the late Herman Rosenthal invoked when Inspector Hayes posted men in his gambling house.

The case before Justice McCall was that of William H. Regan, who conducts a pool parlor on Broadway between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth streets. Evidence was obtained by detectives that has been made in the place and information received over telephone wires regarding horse races.
Mr. Waldo stationed a uniformed policeman in the place Oct. 24 and has kept him there since. Regan asked for a writ of mandamus, directing the Commissioner to remove the policeman, on the ground that the officer's presence was ruining his business.

JUSTICE UPHOLDS ACTION IF EVEN SUSPICION EXISTS.

Commissioner Waldo said that the only effective way to discourage gambling in the place was to keep the officer there. Regan admitted that racketeer information may have come over his telephone, but declared that he was unaware of it, and asked that a plainclothes man be placed there if it was necessary to keep a policeman on the premises.

Commenting on the case, Justice Mc-Call said:
"If there was or could be the slightest doubt that the police authorities were not acting in the full performance of official duties, or in recognition and observance of the very strict obligations that the law imposes upon them to guard against the perpetration of offenses against the law, or if these actions were wilfully or maliciously oppressive, there might be some justification for the interposing of a court of equity."

"But here is a place that is operating a portion of a place under an excise license and such places it is the duty of the police to inspect and keep under inspection. It is charged, and proof is offered to sustain the claim, and for a court of equity to interfere, with its great power against the performance of the duties of the properly constituted authorities would simply be creating a way under the protection of the courts for uninterrupted indulgence in these wrongful acts, and to such end the relief sought should never have been invoked, much less granted. Motion denied."

COURT ORDERS EVIDENCE IN CASE SEIZED.

In returning the papers to Clerk Chas-ter B. Boese, the Court directed that certain affidavits and other pieces of evidence be sealed. Mr. Boese said that the Justice gave no explanation of his order, which is seldom made and then only in cases of matrimonial actions. It is understood that Corporation Counsel Watson's fears, expressed during the argument of the motion that certain papers in the suit might be stolen, actuated the Court to seal the evidence.

The evidence withheld from the public affidavits made by John F. Dwyer, Nov. 20; Marnie R. Lattery, Nov. 15; William F. Denio, Nov. 15; Alfred T.
Wing, Nov. 16 and John P. Leonard, Nov. 14. Exhibits A (p. 20 to 31) and Exhibit B (p. 32 to 33) also are sealed.
